LOCAL WHOLESALE TRADE

WARMER WEATHER BRIGHTENS THE JOBBERS' PROSPECTS.

Sales of Light Cotton Goods Have Increased the Past Week-Boots and Shoes Active on Future Delivery.

Wholesalers and jobbers were all talking optimistically yesterday. All local wholesale trade has needed for weeks to make it active is warmer weather. Now, it seems, the weather has got warm to stay, and much more activity in all the lines normally in good demand at this season is predicted. The past week all lines have held their own in good shape, and a few have moved in an increased volume. In review of the week's trade the local trade journal

In dry goods the general trade is holding up fair. An increase in sales has been the rule for the week in light cotton goods. Strictly summer fabrics have, as is to be expected, suffered considerably on account of the hanging on of the cold weather, 20@30c; paper, 15c; jute, 12@15c; cotton, 22@25c. though retailers themselves feel confident Woodenware—No. 1 tubs, 36@7; No. 2 tubs, 35@ that they will have a very big trade and what may be called a "rush" trade in these so soon as warmer days arrive, which time cannot be much longer delayed. Future delivery goods are selling so liberally that the road men haven't time to get discouraged over this unseasonable weather for 7c;

The spot cotton market is a few points below the average for the last two months. Local dealers do not look for any considerable change in prices for the staple lines until the new crop is assured, and that will be after the usual business for this season has been closed. The mills are making fairly prompt shipments on current orders, but some of the New England mills are

Drugs, confectionery, harness and saddlery and tinners' supply trade is also "good for the season," and the house men report that with them, as with other lines, the weather conditions alone at the only obstacles between them and a lively trade. The boot and shoe people, too, are doing finely on future deliveries, as well as conditions allow on immediate wants. Hardware people say that when the sun shines orders "flock" in, whether the therometer shows 39 or 69. All lines of wire, wire cloth, screening and fencing are selling heavily. Builders' materials also are in liberal demand for the kind of weather now on tap. Prices are all firm, with a few minor advances that go to indicate much higher prices should a heavy de-

The hat and cap fobbers report increasing sales daily, and unexpectedly large orders for next fall and winter lines. Groceries continue to be the "top of the heap" in trade circles. The unseasonable weather helps one class of the grocery business. Dried fruits and vegetables peaches, apricots and prunes are in heavy demand, with slightly higher askings on some grades; peaches and 'cots particu-

The big biz in tobacco is on. The independents are improving the opportunity of-fered them in this commendable stiffening of the wholesaler's backbone, whereby he has bravely informed the tobacco combine that he is going to sell any make of tobacco that there is money in for him, profits to the retailer and satisfaction to the "man who chaws." The Globe, of Toronto, describes as follows the portion of the discussion before the Legislature, in No. 3 mixed, 39c. which reference was made to the opposition of the United States Steel Corporation.

"Mr. Smith, having described the development of the 'Soo,' attributed the failure to raise more money at a critical moment to the opposition of the United States Steel Trust. The Canadian railway influthe steel-rail mill was in operation the government was empowered to put a duty of $4 per ton on the rails. This would not increase the cost of a railway $1,000 per mile, but nevertheless the Canadian railways did what they could to block the completion of the works. The real influence, however, which rendered fruitless the endeavors of Mr. Clergue and associates to raise more money was the United States Steel Trust. He had positive information that during October last a certain financial corporation of New York was ready to dustries. At 10 o'clock one night the agreement was practically closed, and all that remained was to sign the documents and against advancing the money, for the reason that the rehabilitation of the companies would create a dangerous competitor to the United States Steel Corporation." Mr. Smith is further reported as saying that, while he was not at liberty at the moment to divulge the name of his informant, he might do so at a later date. Wall street would be much interested in hearing potash, 15620c; borax, 9612c; cinchonida, 296 more details of the affair. > this week have for the most part been favorable to the buying side and a loss in rived at the beginning of the week, and affected and buyers forced a sharp reduction in values while the opportunity lasted. In two days there was a slump of from 15 to 20c, with the heavy grades showing rather more weakness than light. On Wednesday salesmen succeeded in checking the decline and strong prices were realized as compared with Tuesday. On Thursday the market was strong to 5c higher and on Friday fully a steady average was maintained compared with Thursday, and at this time the average was 21/2@5c higher than Tuesday, but fully 15c lower than the close of last week. While there has not been what might be considered a strong demand for heavy hogs, there has been some complaint of a scarcity of choice kinds weighing around 225 to 250 lbs. The highest prices paid this week were $5.15 for fat steers, $4.40 for feeders, supply of hogs on hand to-day, in fact, fully as many as might be expected at this time. About the usual variety was represented and the quality generally probably was as satisfactory as heretofore this week. There were not many selected loads, but probably as large a proportion as heretofore this week. The market opened with only a fair request from outside sources and naturally local packers were in no particular hurry in arranging a trading basis, but on account of reports from other places they were disposed to be fair, and salesmen being satisfied with steady prices, the offerings were soon starting toward the scales on that basis. There was no competition was 21/2c under yesterday, but there is no doubt that certain well-shaped mixed hogs sold a shade stronger than yesterday, so could not be considered quotably different isfactory to salesmen, nothwithstanding a satisfactory clearance had been made. The receipts to-day were very fair for a Saturday market and there was probably a little better variety than usual at this time in the week. position fully as high if not a shade higher Heavy cattle were not plentiful, but the outlet was rather slow and it was more or less difficult to transfer supplies at our rent prices. The market for feeding cattle this week has been the poorest of the season thus far. Probably the unfavorable weather conditions caused an unusually light demand for the country, and this nat-urally affected the request from professional buyers. Special orders were executed along through the week at nearly steady prices for the best selections, but the sup plies of fair to medium feeders accumulated from day to day, and late in the week only a small percentage of the supply could be sold and then only at a decline of from 10c to 15c in prices. Finally, however, speculators took hold, and at the close of the week a very fair clearance had been made. Cows and heifers suffered a slight change in prices the opening day of the week, but immediately there was a rally and until the close of the week sales were usually at firm prices compared with the close of last week. In fact cow stuff sold at good strong prices all week. On Friday the competisales were at weak to 10c lower prices according to the desirability of the offerings. There has been rather an active demand for bulls all week and good strong prices were realized although extreme sales did not show any quotable improvement. There has not been much change in the WEEK'S CHANGES SATISFACTORY. The developments in the sheep and lamb trade this week have been generally sat-Most of the time butchers have required usually has been uniform and on that account there has been very little spread in prices. Most of the time there were not enough of all kinds to establish their value by actual sales and rarely were there enough of any kind to obtain a range in values. Therefore there has really been no occasion for any material change in the market, in fact prices throughout the week have been quoted steady as compared with those prevailing at the close of last week. Spring lambs have sold from $8 to $11, wool lambs from $5.50 to $6.25, clipped lambs from $5 to $5.25, wool sheep at $4 to $4.75 and clipped sheep at $3 to $4.
